FrogWatch USA

Comes to the Bergen County Zoo

The Bergen County Zoo has teamed up with the Association of Zoos and Aquariums and the citizens of Bergen County to create a local chapter of FrogWatch.

FrogWatch is a nation-wide long-term volunteer monitoring program. Volunteers get involved with conservation and the environment by registering a wetland near them and recording the frog and toad species and calling intensities observed through the breeding season (Feb. through Aug.)

If you are a self-motivated, environmentally-minded person with a few minutes to spare each week contact Carol at cfusco@co.bergen.nj.us or call (201) 262-3771 Ext. 125. After a brief training course and some hands on help you can be adding to the scientific database and helping to preserve the wetlands.
